AS youth is the time of life most capable of instruction; and as 'tis the concern of the last importance to learn early; for otherwise, in Cicero's opinion, we very seldom, if ever, learn all; each attempt, how weak soever, to render the study of the sciences easy and amiable, is in itself praise-worthy, and may, with modesty, lay claim to such share of the indulgence of the publick, as is, in some degree, equal to its merit.

Without depreting, therefore, the labours of those who have travelled in the same road before us, we shall content ourselves with barely explaining the little Plan which we have here pursued, and declare, without reserve, the principal motives that induced us to undertake it.

To confess ingenuously then, we are conscious to ourselves, that the alphabetical list, or collection of words, inserted in our little * SPELLING-BOOK, is now

* Now greatly improved, and published under the title of The INFANT TUTOR price six-pence bound.

E. copious as some may possibly wish it ; then that omission was owing, in part, the narrow compass to which we were confined, and partly to a view of introducing other matter, equally instructive, and more entertaining. In this compensation our DICTIONARY, however, the deficiency is abundantly supplied ; for here every parent, school-master, or governess, will find a vast variety of additional words, and any particular number of syllables required, by inspecting only the figures in the margin, which denote the proper division ; and moreover, not only the double, as well as single accents, where necessary, in order to prevent a vicious pronunciation, but the several parts of speech to which they respectively belong ; the little (f) or (s) on the right-hand, denoting the word to be a Substantive ; the (a) an Adjective ; the (v) a Verb, and the (p) a Particle : into which all the parts of speech (tho' usually reckoned eight) may, with propriety, be resolved. And whenever the same words are repeated, they will find the additional letter always varied, and sometimes the orthography, to shew that the sense and sig-nification are very different. This method, we humbly conceive, may not only

Concise Historical Account of that Language.

T

HE power of giving sounds to thought, a voice to the silent language of the heart, and of expressing all that the mind can conceive by combinations of intelligible tone, addressed to the ear, is one of the most amazing, and at the same time one of th-eatest privileges of our nature: and close-connected with this, as the most valuable of all human discoveries, is the art of expressing these thoughts on the eye in legible characters. By the former we are rendered capable of social intercourse, of receiving and conveying ideas, of enjoying the endearments of friendship, and the commu-

communications of wisdom : By the last we converse where the ear is far out of the reach of sound, and transmit our thoughts to the remotest parts of the earth ; we treasure up what might otherwise escape our memories, become acquainted with the actions of former ages and distant countries, with all the learning of the antients and improvements of the moderns, and can read the laws which the Great Creator of the Universe has given for the government of our passions, and the regulation of our conduct. Without the first, we should have been solitary in the midst of crowds, excluded from every kind of knowledge except what fell under our immediate notice ; and should have been confined to dull and tedious efforts of interpreting our desires by signs and gestures. Without the last we might indeed enjoy the benefit of conversation, but then we should be held in ignorance, and perplexed in error ; we should obtain but a very imperfect knowledge of the present time, and could receive no information as to the past, but from partial accounts handed down by tradition. In short, without the first we could scarcely be accounted rational, and but for the last we should have the late been as ignorant as the wild illiterate In-out of the ans.

though It has been observed, that language is arth; to the mind what painting and sculpture wise escape to the sight: however, the difference d with the favour of the former is extremely great. ant could the most finished pieces of imagery are at e antient but dull and unaffecting, when comerns, and red with the energy of words. By such at Creat masterly productions of art, we have ine govern ed the object presented before us, but regulation language can set it in all varieties of view, first, under every combination of circumstances. midst The idea of an universal language, could kind such a one possibly obtain, should seem to r our im ply something highly beneficial to the been com man race: but eternal unerring wisdom, s of int ither for our advantage or punishment, has d gesture determined against it, and appointed to e-deed enjo ry nation a particular tongue, and to each then w strict its peculiar dialect.

perplex Having said thus much of language in a very im general, it is requisite that we now give a ent time accinct account of our own, point out the as to the rious changes it has undergone, and by s hands that means it has arrived at its present thout the perfection.

unted ra As we have many reasons to conclude ould have that this country was originally peopled bec from

from the adjacent coast of France, the ancient Gaul, we are thence to infer, that the British language eighteen hundred years ago was the same as that dialect of the Gaulish called the Celtic. But about half a century before the Christian æra, Julius Cæsar invaded Britain, and in the reign of Claudius, a Roman colony was planted in the south-east parts of England, and finally under Domitian the whole nation became a Roman province ; when those Britons who refused to submit to the foreign yoke retired into Wales, in hopes of retaining their liberty, and carried their language along with them. From this period the Latin tongue was gradually introduced and mixed in all parts of the land with the British, which those first conquerors were never able to suppress.

At length the Roman legions were called home ; and then the Scots and Picts making an irruption into the north parts of England, king Vortigern, about the year 400, invited the Saxons to his assistance. These allies came over with several of their neighbours, under the conduct of Hengist and Horsa, and having subdued the Scots and Picts, had the isle of Thanet assigned them at first as a reward for their

the an- their service, and afterwards the whole er, that county of Kent, which they governed aed years out three hundred and fifty years, till of the owing powerful and dissatisfied with out half their narrow limits, they at length took , Julius cession of all the country on this side reign of the Welch mountains, and divided it a-anted is ing themselves into seven kingdoms, d finally led the Saxon heptarchy. Thus the became tish tongue, before mixed with the La-Britons , was almost abolished, and many of the gn yoke trons obliged again to take refuge in retaining ales and Cornwall, while the usurpers language d the foundation of new laws, and a new eriod the guage.

In this situation England continued till and with out the year 800, when it was invaded conqueror the Danes, who, after being several es repulsed, established themselves in ere called the northern and eastern parts, where ets making their power increasing, they at length, af-parts of a contest of two hundred years, made the year themselves the sole masters of England; assistance and by this means the language became several e lectured with the Danish: but as their nduct of government was of no long duration, it g subdued not make so great an alteration in the of Th Anglo-Saxon, as the next revolution, when eward for the whole was again subdued by William the duke

duke of Normandy, afterwards called William the Conqueror ; for the Normans, as a monument of their conquest, endeavoured to make their language as universally received as possible.

Thus the English tongue, which was antiently pure British or Welch, became a mixture of a little British, a great deal of Latin, a yet far greater part of Anglo-Saxon, some Danish, and abundance of Norman French : but since that time the revival of arts and sciences has added greatly to its embellishment. These have introduced a vast variety of words from the Greek, Latin, Italian and modern French ; our poets have added grace and harmony to their numbers, and our prose writers have strengthened and improved their periods, by selecting the most musical, expressive, and strongest terms from every known language ; so that, notwithstanding its being a compound of such heterogeneous ingredients, it is become the most copious and significant of any in Europe, adapted to all subjects, and expressive of every sentiment with elegance and propriety.

We come next to give a short account of the several parts of the English tongue

ken in a grammatical sense: by which will appear to be extremely simple in its composition, and free from the many rules which render others difficult to the learner. For though grammar is the same in all languages, except the Chinese, yet every grammar ought to be adapted to the genius of that language, which it is intended to illustrate and explain.

Without going into a critical dissertation on the letters of the alphabet, and the proper manner of dividing syllables, we will immediately enter upon the parts of speech, which may be distinguished into these four; nouns substantive, nouns ad-junctive, verbs, and particles.

Nouns SUBSTANTIVE, or names, are words whereby things themselves, whether sensible or intelligible, are expressed, and therefore the word thing cannot be put immediately after a substantive, without making it nonsense; for we cannot say man thing, horse thing, &c. They are called substantives, because they stand alone, or with an article, and require no other word to express their signification. In the following Dictionary these nouns are marked with (s) by way of abbreviation. They are divided into common, proper, and personal.

sonal. The common comprehends a whole kind or species, as man is a name that belongs to all men, city to every city, and river to every river. The proper serves to distinguish particular things, as John is the name of a particular man, London of a certain city, and the Thames of a particular river. The personal, or PRONOUN, is used to avoid the repetition of other names; I, instead of my name; thou or you, instead of your name; he and she, instead of the name of the person of whom we are speaking; and it, when we mention a thing that has no distinct sex. Thus in speaking of myself, I use the word I; if more than one speak of themselves, they use the word we; in speaking to another, we use thou or you; in speaking to more than one, we say ye or you; if we speak of a person to whom we do not address our discourse, we say he or she; and of a thing without sex, we say it; and if of more persons or things than one, we say they.

Here it is worthy of remark, that which and what, are sometimes called personal interrogatives, as being frequently used in asking questions, in which who is only used in speaking of persons, and which or what of either persons or things.

ings; as Who is that lady? What man came? What place do you chuse? It must also be observed, that who, which and that, are frequently called relatives, from their having a relation to some foregoing word, as the man who wrote that book; where who refers to man. In this case, who is only applied to persons, which to things, and that to either persons or things.

In the English language, personals are the only nouns that are expressed differently, when placed before and after a verb; I, thou, he or she, which are called the three persons singular, are placed before the verb, and me, thee, him and her, are placed after it; as also we, ye, they, called the three persons plural, precede the verb, and us, you, him, her and them, follow after it.

Substantives have two numbers, the singular and the plural: the singular, which expresses only one person or thing, is frequently distinguished by a, an, one, or the being before it, as a bird, a king, an arm or an arm; and the plural is generally known by its ending with s, as birds, kings, arms; but when the singular ends with ch, sh, s, or x, then es must be added, as churches, shees, asses, foxes. To this general rule there there are however a few exceptions, as those singulars which end in f or fe have their plurals ending in ves, as loaf, loaves; wife, wives; calf, calves: though dwarf, dwarfs; handkerchief, mischiefs, proofs, religious proofs, roofs, scarfs, wharfs, are made plural by adding only s, as are words ending in ff, except slaves. Again, some words are entirely changed in the plural, as foot makes feet; goose, geese; chick, chickens or chickens; tooth, teeth; man, men; woman, women; child, children; brother, brethren, or brothers; ox, oxen; louse, lice; mouse, mice; penny, pence; cow, kine or cows. Some words have no plural, as corn, wheat, rye, barley, chaff, bran, meal, beer, vinegar, honey, butter, tar, pitch, wool, dust, hunger, thirst, people, of spring, &c. Of this class are also the virtues and vices, as justice, temperance, beauty, hatred, envy, &c. and abstract qualities, as happiness, misery, wisdom, paleness, contempt, grief, &c. Others have the same ending in both numbers, as deer, sheep, &c. And others have no singular, as bellows, bowels, breeches, tongs, scissors, snuffers, fallowes, waxes, thanks, &c.

In most other languages the masculine and feminine genders being applied to inanimate things, give no small trouble.

ous, a arner; but with us they are only apse hav to their proper and necessary use, loaves s, to distinguish the sexes, in which dwarf ther use two words, as in man, wo-
 , relig boy, girl; brother, sister; duck, drake; ade plu gander: or by putting another word s endin live of the sex before the name, as ords a servant, maid servant; male child, t make child; cock sparrow, hen sparrow; he cbicken the goat. In some few words, the fe-women is distinguished from the male, by brother ing the termination into ess, as count, ; penn ; beir, beiress; prince, princess: or rds hav e, as administratrix, executrix, testa- ey, cbay They are also known by the perso-tter, ta names he, him, used in speaking of ople, of ; she, her, used in referring to fe-the v ; and it, when we refer to inani-nce, b things. But there are four or five lities, in the language, which may be concontem as exceptions to this rule; for we e endin mes use the word sun in the mascu-&c. At tender, and the moon, the church, and us, bo are of the feminine. rs, fol head of cases, and the various termi-n masculi s and declensions used in Latin, we ed to i nly the articles a, an, the, of, to, by, rquible with, &c. to distinguish the several instances of the noun, either when B alone

alone, or when joined to an adjective except in the genitive case, which we sometimes form by adding 's to the noun, as, the son of the king, we write the king's son; we also say, Charles's watch, James's book, &c.

ADJECTIVES, distinguished in the following dictionary by (a), express the qualities or properties of the substantive; as fine, good, wise, excellent, foolish, sweet, &c. which may have a substantive joined to them to make them understood, as a fine garden, a good man, a wise man, &c. And these in the English tongue have neither number, case, gender, but are joined to nouns, either masculine or feminine, singular or plural without altering their terminations, as a good man, a good woman, a good house, good men, &c. and though in most other languages they are placed after the substantive, in English they are placed before as in the above examples; in poetry, however, this order is sometimes changed, O bard divine! The principal peculiarity of this part of speech is, that qualities admit of degrees of comparison, which they do not: and of these there are properly but two, called the comparative and the superlative, both formed from the qual-adjective in its positive state, which expresses simply we form absolutely the state of the name, without, as, relation to the like quality in any other thing's form: as wise, bright, fair, vile: The com- parative degree, by comparing one thing with another, expresses the quality somewhat increased or diminished, and is formed by adding er to the positive, as wiser, finer, brighter, fairer, viler: and the superlative which more expresses absolutely the superiority of one above or beyond the other, as wisest, finest, brightest, fairest, vilest. The degrees of the English comparison are also frequently formed by adding more or most, without altering the termination of the adjective, as more wise, or plusher wise; which serves to vary the turn of the expression, and is often esteemed more elegant than barely altering the termination: this is particularly the case in words of two, three, or more syllables; thus more beautiful, most beautiful, are more elegant than beautifuller, beautiful'est. Thus extraordinary, remarkable, and most other words, have their degrees of comparison always expressed by more and most; for we never say extraordinarier, extraordina- re. We have, however, a few irregular, which cannot be brought under these rules, in which the degrees of comparison are formed by different words, as littlest, least; bad, worse, worst; good, better, best; much or many, more, most.

It must be observed, that nouns or names are sometimes used as adjectives or qualities, as a gold watch, a diamond ring, a silver candlestick: And that a quality is used as a name, and is to be considered as a substantive, whenever it is taken in an abstracted or universal sense, which substances are generally formed by adding ness to the adjective, as goodness, whiteness, &c.

Some grammarians have ranked the words my, mine; thy, thine; his, hers; ours; your, yours; their, theirs; under the class of qualities derived from personal names, and called them personal possessives; and also this, that, the same, which are called demonstratives, because they shew what particular person or thing we mean, as this house, that horse. This and that, in the plural number, make these and those.

A VERB, or affirmation, marked in the following dictionary with (v), is a word which expresses what is affirmed or denied of things; and is usually reckoned of two kinds, the auxiliary verb, and the verb substantive, both of which have persons, numbers, tenses or times. The persons, which distinguished by a personal name going before them, vary their terminations only in the singular number, as in I live, thou livest, he lives or liveth, we live, ye live, they live. The affirmations in the English language have but three tenses or times, the present, the past, and the future; or in other words, the thing doing, done, or to be done; for all other tenses are formed by adding the auxiliary verb, and without any variation in the termination. The present tense is expressed by the affirmation itself, as I dance; the past tense generally ends with ed, as I danced; and the future is formed by adding the auxiliary verb shall or will, as I shall dance; and as there are but two tenses or times expressed in the affirmation, its various changes are signified by the nine following auxiliary affirmations, viz. do, will, shall, may, can, must, ought, have, am or be, which being placed before other affirmations, signify time, reason, power, liberty, necessity, duty, &c. It must be observed, that when one of these auxiliaries is put before another affirmation, the auxiliary only alters its termination in expressing the persons, as I am living, thou art living, he is living, we are are living, &c. I do live, thou dost live, doth or docs live, &c.

As some are apt to mistake the use of shall and will, the signs of the future tense, it must be observed that when we only simply foretell, we use shall in the first person, and will in the rest; but when we promise, threaten or engage, we use will in the first person, and shall in the other.

We have said, that the affirmation generally expresses the past time by adding ed to the present; but there are a great many words which cannot be reduced to this rule; the most common irregular is the changing the d into t, and omitting the vowel, as in mixt for mixed; the others are too many to be all here enumerated, such as I am awake, I awoke; I bear, I borne, I have borne; I see, I saw; I swim, I swam; I spin, I spun; I teach, I taught; I tread, I trod, I have trodden; I weep, I wept; I write, I wrote, I have written.

The affirmation has sometimes the particle to placed before it; and when it is thus used, it is always joined with another affirmation; and has then the power of a name or substantive.

PARTICLES, marked in the following dictionary with a (p), are such words as live, &c. some circumstance or quality of an action, join words or sentences together, or express some sudden emotions of the soul; and we comprehend all that are commonly known by the names of Adverbs, Conjunctions, Prepositions, and Interjections: words which, though of different natures, ought to be reduced to one class, since they always resemble their form, and are subject to none of the variations of the other parts of speech.

The use of ADVERBS is to denote some circumstance or quality of the word to which they are joined, which is frequently an affirmation, as I love her dearly; as many of these are derived from adjectives, they, like them, admit of degrees of comparison, as happily, more happily, most happily; wisely, more wisely, most wisely: these always end in ly. Adverbs are also divided into those of time, as now, ready, yesterday, often, always, seldom, &c. into those of place, as here, there, hither, above, below, &c. Into those of number, as first, secondly, thirdly, once, twice, &c. into those of quantity, as more, less, enough, much, &c. Into those of affirmation, as yes, truly, &c. Into those of negation, as no, not, nay, &c. Into those of doubt as perhaps, peradventure, &c.

CONJUNCTIONS are words that join sentences together, and shew the manner of their dependence on one another; and, also, or, nor, either, neither.

PREPOSITIONS are particles set before other words, to shew the relation which the subsequent word has to some other that precedes it, as at, against, among, between, from, for, in, of, with, &c.

INTERJECTIONS are imperfect words, mostly monosyllables, that denote some sudden emotion or passion of the mind, and being expressed by a kind of involuntary impulse, have no connection with any other part of a sentence, as ah! alas! strange! pish! fob! busb! bark! &c.

Of these four parts of speech every sentence is compounded, and on the proper choice of words, and the disposition and manner of placing them, all the elegance, harmony, and force of language consists.

GENERAL RULES

For dividing WORDS of several Syllables, and for spelling and writing true English.

IN spelling words of several syllables, all the letters, whereof the first is composed, must be joined together and pronounced; then the letters that make up the second syllable must be put together, which when pronounced must be added to the first, and so on, till the whole word be finished; as for instance, in the word Multiplication.

m u l ——— mul

t i ——— ti ——— mul-ti p l i ——— pli ——— mul-ti-pli c a ——— ca ——— mul-ti-pli-ca t i ——— ti ——— mul-ti-pli-ca-ti o n ——— on ——— mul-ti-pli-ca-ti-on

In order to know exactly what number syllables there are in a word, you must divide out all the distinct sounds that are in it; as for instance, in Mar-tyr there are two, in Mar-tyr-dom there are three, and in Mar-ty-ro-lo-gy five, &c.

The general rule for spelling is this: divide your syllables correctly, and put as many ny letters to one syllable as make one distinct sound in the pronunciation of that word, as di-al, de-ni-al, con-gre-ga-ti-on, &c.

The special rules are the four following, namely.

1. When a single consonant falls between two vowels, 'tis joined with the latter ; as pe-rish, pu-nish, &c. (though to this rule there are some exceptions) and the letter x, is always joined to the preceding vowel, as tax-es, box-es, &c.

2. When two consonants of the same kind come together, they must be divided, as dag-ger, let-ter, big-ger, &c.

3. When several consonants come together in the middle of a word, they must be placed in the syllables, according to the distinct sounds ; as for instance, pre-scribe, re-trench, a-ble, ta-ble, &c. but in fis-ter, blis-ter, bas-ket, cas-ket, &c. the consonants must be divided, one to the first, and the other to the latter syllable, because they are so pronounced.

4. When two vowels come together in the middle, and both are distinctly pronounced, they must be parted, as for example, di-al, tri-al, cre-ate, re-cess, &c.

Though

Though these are the principal rules to be observed, yet there are some few exceptions ; as for instance, all such words as are composed of two distinct ones, such as house-wife, free-hold, where-as, where-in, &c. as also all such words as consist of a primitive and a preposition preceding it, as adorn, in-ure, en-able, &c. And lastly, such as consist of one word and a termination, viz. charm-eth, ed, ing, and er ; paint-eth, ed, ing, and er, &c. In all which cases the single words must all keep their own proper letters and syllables distinct, and the little prepositions and terminations must be spelt distinctly by themselves.

You are likewise to observe,

1. That when cb, pb, tb, or fb, begin either a word or a syllable, they must be looked upon as single consonants, except where they are sounded apart, as in Clapham, &c.

2. That there are many words wherein the sound of the consonant is truly double, and belongs properly to both syllables, tho' custom has joined the consonant to the latter ; as bo-mage, i-mage, va-nish, &c.

3. That some words begin with double consonants, and some with three.

4. In

4. In monosyllables instead of l write ll after a single vowel, as fall, call, tall, &c. but in words of two or more syllables make use only of one l, as two-ful, doubt-ful, ful-fil, mar-ti-al, cri-ti-cal, &c.

With regard to spelling and writing true English, the best way will be to pronounce your words clear, and distinct, syllable by syllable : give the full sound to every part of a word, and write it as it is pronounced in the hardest and hardest manner ; as for instance, i-ron not i-urn, a-iron not a-pure, calf not caf, &c.

As you read, observe how the vowels and consonants are sounded in different sorts of words, whether English or Foreign, and remember to write them accordingly.

Observe where letters keep their proper sound, and where they change it.

Take notice also of such letters as are silent, and not pronounced at all ; and remember to put those letters in when you write, though you leave them out when you read.

Accustom yourself to spell every word true ; and if you are in the least dubious write it not without consulting this or some other English dictionary.

Of QUANTITY and ACCENT:

THE general rule to be observed in the pronouncing of words and syllables is to sound every syllable according to its proper Quantity; and every word of two or more syllables must have its proper Accent. By Quantity I mean the distinction of syllables into Long or Short, in reading either prose or verse; and this depends on the various sounds of the vowels. But here it is to be observed, that though in reading verse the accent must be laid on the same syllable as in prose, and the words pronounced in the same manner; yet, a syllable in verse is called long or short, not according to the long or short vowel, but according to the Accent.

By Accent is meant, that particular stress or force of sound which the voice lays upon any syllable, whether it be long or short, as upon ró in ró-ver, or báp in báp-py; and though the accent is more frequently laid on a long syllable than on a short one, it is not so always: nor is the accent always upon the same syllables in the same words; for the same word, when it is an affirmation, has the accent upon the last syllable, as to convért, to.

to rebél, to recórd ; but when it is a name, it is accented on the first, as a Cónvert, a Rébel, a Récord. Again, Compound and derivative words are not always accented like their primitives ; for in Máker the accent is strong on the first syllable ; which in Sbóemaker is lost. So confér, prefér, and the like, have their accents on the last syllable ; but cónference, préference, &c. on the first.

Some long words also have two accents, as ómniprésent, fámuliáritý, jústificátion ; and some three, as tránsusbstantiátion ; but then the last is commonly the strongest ; and as there are no general rules for placing the accent on words of several syllables, we must be determined by custom ; yet it is worth observing, that in our language, the accent is generally removed as far as possible, at least as far as conveniently may be from the last syllable.—We shall add a few particular remarks to this general observation.

1. In words of two syllables, which are both short, or both long, the accent is usually laid on the first, as in báppy, préwate, and the like.

2. If the first syllable only be long, the accent is generally laid upon it.

3. When

3. When the accent is laid upon the last syllable, the word is commonly a sort of compound, as divért, prévént, retúrn.

4. In words of three or more syllables, the accent is seldom laid on the two last, but often on the first or second, as in tém-erance, cóntroversy, abóminable. But after all the rules that can be given, proper tables or catalogues of words will be the best help to children in this particular.

Rules for READING, and particularly of the EMPHASIS belonging to some special Word or Words in a Sentence.

IN order to read well, observe the following directions.

1. Take pains to acquire a perfect knowledge of the sounds of all the letters in general.
2. Do not guess at a word at first sight, if you are not well acquainted with it, lest you get a habit of reading falsely.
3. Pronounce every word clearly and distinctly. Let the tone of your voice in reading be the same as in speaking.
5. Do not read in a hurry, for fear of learning to stammer.
6. Read so loud as to be heard by those those about you, but not louder. 7. Observe your pauses well, and never make any where the sense will admit of none. 8. Humour your voice a little according to the subject. 9. Attend to those who read well, and endeavour to imitate their pronunciation. 10. Read often before good judges, and be thankful when they correct you. 11. Consider well the place of the Emphasis in a sentence, and pronounce it accordingly. By Emphasis we mean, the stress or force of voice that is laid on some particular word or words in a sentence, whereby the meaning and beauty of the whole may best appear: this, with respect to sentences, is the same as Accent with regard to syllables.

The Emphasis is generally placed upon the accented syllable of a word; but if there be a particular opposition between two words in a sentence, whereof one differs from the other but in part, the accent is sometimes removed from its common place, as in the following instance; The sun shines upon the just and upon the unjust. Here the stress of the voice is laid upon the first syllable in unjust, because it is opposed to just in the same sentence; but without such an opposition the rent would lie on its usual place, that is, the last syllable ; as, We must not imitate the unjust Practices of others.

The great and general rule how to know the emphatical word in a sentence is, to con- sider the chief design of the whole : but particular directions cannot be easily given : except that when words are evidently opposed one another in a sentence, they are em- phatical ; and so is oftentimes the word which asks a question, as who, what, when, &c. but not always ; for the emphasis must be varied according to the principal meaning of the speaker : as suppose I enquire, Did my Father walk abroad yesterday ? If I lay the emphasis on the word Father, it plainly shows I want to know whether it was he somebody else ; if I place the emphasis on walk, the person I speak to is sensible I would be informed whether he went on foot, or on horseback, &c. But if I lay the stress of my voice on the word yesterday, it denotes that I am satisfied my father did walk abroad, and that he went on foot, tho' I want to know the particular time, whether it was yesterday, or some day before.

Instructions for Reading VERSE.

TH E R E are two ways of writing any subject, namely, in Prose, and in Verse.

Prose is the usual method of writing without any confinement to a certain number of syllables, or ranging the words in any peculiar form ; which, on the contrary, verse requires.

The words in verse must be ranged so as that the accents may naturally fall on such peculiar syllables as make a sort of harmony to the ear : and this is called Measure, that is Measure ; to which Rhyme is generally added ; that is, two or more verses, near to each other, are made to end with the same or the like sound ; but this is not absolutely necessary.

There is another sort of verse which has no rhyme, called Blank Verse, the words whereof are generally disposed in metre so as that the accent may fall on every second, fourth, and sixth syllable ; and on the eighth, tenth, and twelfth also, if the lines are long. The following verse of ten syllables may serve for an example :

The monarch spoke, and straight a murmur rose

But our poetry allows of great and frequent variation from this rule, especially in the first and second syllables of the line; as in the verse which rhymes with the former, where the accent is upon the first syllable :
Loud as the surges when the tempest blows.

There are two sorts of metre which vary from this rule; one of them is when the line contains but seven syllables, and the accent lies on the first, third, fifth, and seventh; as in the following :

*Could we, which we néver can,
 Stétch our líves beyónd their spán, Beauty líke a shádw flies,
 'And our yóuth befóre us díes.*

The other sort has a hasty sound, and requires an accent on every third syllable; as for example :

*'Tis the voice of the slúggard; I béar him complain,
 You have wák'd me too soón, I must slúmber again.*

In reading verse you are to pronounce it just as if it were prose, observing the stops with great exactness, and by giving each word or syllable its due and natural accent; but with these two restrictions, 1. Though there be no stop at the end of a line, make a small pause (less than after a comma) before fore you begin the next. 2. If any word in the line has two sounds, give it that which is most suitable to the rhyme and metre.—To favour the metre, for instance, the word glittering must sometimes be pronounced as three syllables, and sometimes as two, glitt'ring: and upon the same account the word avenue may have the accent either upon the first syllable or the second: âvenue or avénue. So to favour the rhyme, the word flattery at the end of a line must be sometimes sounded as if it were written flatteree, and sometimes as if it ended in i, so as it may best chime with the foregoing verse.

Of the NOTES and POINTS made use of in WRITING and PRINTING.

AFTER having laid down these rules for pronouncing single words, it will be proper, before we begin with reading, to take notice of the several sorts of points and marks that are used in writing and printing: the first of which are the stops of the voice, called, 1. Comma; 2. Semicolon; 3. Colon; 4. Period. The use of these stops is, not only to give a proper time for breathing ; but to avoid obscurity and confusion of the sense in the joining words together in a sentence : as for example, the Comma divides the lesser parts of a sentence, and stops the reader's voice till he can tell one. The Semicolon divides the greater parts of a sentence, at which the reader may pause till he can tell two. The Colon is generally used where the sense, not the sentence, is compleat, and requires us to pause till we can tell three. The Period, or Full-Point, is put when the sense is fully ended, and requires a pause till we can tell four.—But let it be noted, that the Colon and Semicolon are often used for each other, especially in our Bibles.

There are two other marks which may be termed notes of affection, the one used in asking a question, called an Interrogation, and marked thus ? The other is used when we admire, wish, &c. and is usually called an Exclamation or Admiration, being marked thus ! Each of these requires almost as long a pause after it as a period.

The other marks to be met with in reading are chiefly the twelve following : 1. Apóstrophe ' 2. Hypben - 3. Parenthesís () 4. Brackets [] 5. Paragrapb ¶ 6. Quotation tion " 7. Section § 8. Ellipsis — 9. Index  10. Asterisk * 11. Obelisk † 12. Caret ^.

1. An Apostrophe is set over a word when some letter is left out; as 'tis for it is, tho' for though, lov'd for loved. 2. An Hyphen joins syllables together, and sometimes words which make a compound, as apple-pye, cheese-cake, &c. A Parentesis includes something not necessary to the sense, but brought in to explain or illustrate it; as I know that in me (that is, in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing. 4. Brackets or crutches include a word or words that are mentioned as the very matter of discourse; as The little word [man] makes a great noise in the world. They are also used to inclose part of a sentence cited from another author; sometimes what is to be explained and sometimes the explication itself. But Brackets and Parenteses are often used for one another without distinction. 5. The Paragraph is a mark chiefly used in the Bible, and denotes the beginning of some new matter or subject. 6. The Quotation or double comma inverted, is used to distinguish what is cited from an author from his own words. 7. A Section shews the division of a chapter, &c. and is used for

9. The same purpose in common books as the 10. The Paragraph is in the Bible. 8. The Ellipsis is used when part of a word or sentence is omitted; as, K—g for King. 9. The In- terline denotes that the passage which it points to is very remarkable. 10. The Asterisk, or Star, generally refers to some remark in the margin, or at the bottom of the page. When several of them stand together, they imply that some part of an author is lost, or too immodest to be read.
 11. The Obelisk or Dagger, and also parallel lines marked; thus ||, are used to refer to something in the margin. 12. The Carriage is made use of in writing (not in printing) to shew the omission of a word or letter, and the place where it ought to come in; as, A good boy rises in the morning.
 early

It may not here be amiss to mention those hooked lines called Braces, the design whereof is to couple two or more words or lines together that have a relation to one thing; as,

The vowel a has { a long } Sound.
 { a short }
 { a broad }

A brace is also used in poetry, when three lines have the same rhyme or ending.

There are some other marks that relate to single words, the use of which ought likewise to be known, and they are, 1. Dialysis, or Diæresis .. placed over vowels to shew they must be pronounced in distinct syllables; as in Raphaël, Ephraïm, &c. 2. Circumflex ^, which is set over a vowel to denote a long and grave sound; as in Euphrâtes. 3. An Accent, marked thus ' to shew where the stress of the voice must be placed; as in diligence, neglect, &c. And sometimes a double accent is used, to shew that the following consonant must be pronounced double; as in ba'-nish, ba'-more. 4. To these we may add the Long —, and Short °, which denote the quantity of the syllable over which they are placed; as in the word quātēr.

Of the different Letters used in printed Books, and particularly of the Use of the CAPITALS.

THE names of the several sorts of letters we usually meet with in printed books books are the round, full, and upright print, which is called Roman: the long, leaning, narrow letters, which are called Italic or Italian: and the antient black character, which is called Englisch. Take this specimen of each.

Rom.	Ital.	Eng.
Angel,	Angel,	Angel.

The Old English is seldom used now-a-days, except in acts of parliament, proclamations, &c. The Roman is chiefly in vogue for printing books and pamphlets, the Italic being intermixed for the sake of distinguishing proper names, the titles or arguments of chapters, examples to rules laid down, words of any foreign language, texts of scripture or citations from other authors, speeches or sayings of any person, emphatical words, and whatever is most significant and remarkable.

1. A Capital, or great letter, begins every name of the supreme Being; as, God, Lord, the Almighty, Father, Son, Spirit, &c.
 2. All proper names, whether of men or things, and titles of distinction, as King, Queen, Knight, Esquire, &c. must also begin with a capital.
 3. So must every book, chapter, verse, paragraph, and sentence after ter a period. 4. A saying, or citation from an author, and every line of a poem ought to begin with a great letter. 5. I and O, when single, must be capitals. 6. Any words, especially names or substantives, if they be emphatical, may begin with a capital; but the common practice, of beginning every substantive with a great letter, is not to be recommended.

Capitals also are frequently used for ornament, as in the titles of books; and likewise to express numbers, and in abbreviations.

A Table of NUMBERS and FIGURES.

Numbers are usually expressed either by these seven Roman capital letters, I. V. X. L. C. D. M. which are called Numerals; or by these ten characters, viz 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, which are called Figures, and 0, which is a Cypher.

Their Signification.

I One. V. Five X. Ten. L. Fifty.
C. a Hundred. D. Five Hundred. M. a Thousand.

1. One. 2. Two. 3. Three. 4. Four.
5. Five. 6. Six. 7. Seven. 8. Eight.
9. Nine. 0. Nothing.

Observe, concerning the Numeral Letters, that if a less Numeral Letter be placed before a greater, it takes away from the greater so much as the lesser stands for; but being placed after a greater it adds so much to it as the lesser stands for; as the letter V stands for Five; but having I placed before it, it takes takes One from it, and makes both stand but for Four, thus, IV. But I, being set after V, adds One to it, and makes it thus Six, VI. Take notice of these examples.

IV Four V Five VI Six
IX Nine X Ten XI Eleven
XL Forty L Fifty LX Sixty XC Ninety C Hundred CX Hundred & ten

Observe, concerning the Characters or Figures, that Cyphers at the right-hand of Figures increase their value ten times, as One, 10 Ten, 100 Hundred, 7 Seven, 7000 Seven Thousand; but at the left-hand they signify nothing at all, as 01, 001, make but One, 0002, but Two.

A figure at every remove from the right-hand increases its value ten times, as 9 Nine, 98 Ninety-eight, 987 Nine hundred eighty seven.

Note here, that the numbers are sometimes expressed pressed by small Roman letters, as i. one, ii. two, xvi. sixteen, lxxviii. seventy-eight, &c.

Note also, Where books, chapters, sections and verses are cited, the numerical letters are generally used to signify the book or chapter, and the Figures to signify the sections, verses or smaller parts; as Exod. xii. 17. Exodus, the twelfth chapter, and the seventeenth verse. So B. IX. Sect. 24. signifies Book the ninth, and the twenty-fourth section.

Figures are also used to express the things following, (viz.)

1. The order, or succession of things; as, 1st, 2^d, 3^d, 4th, 10th, 39th, first, second, third, &c.

2. The fractions or parts of a thing; as, $\frac{1}{2}$ one half, $\frac{1}{3}$ one third part, $\frac{1}{4}$ one fourth, or quarter; $\frac{3}{4}$ three quarters, $\frac{5}{8}$ five eighths, &c.

3. The numbers of action, as 2ce twice, 3ce thrice.

4. The size of books, as 4to Quarto, 8vo Octavo, 12mo Duodecimo or Twelves, 24to Twenty-fours.

5. The months, as 7br. September, 8br. October, 9br. November, 10br. December.
